1 The web portal

Our web portal provides you with comprehensive information on ancient Thracian coins. In addition to the numerous search options in our database, you will also find a PDF library of publications on Thracian numismatics, useful links, a bibliography and a news section. By registering, you can even save your search results and enter new coins in the database. This makes CNT the easiest way to start numismatic research on Thrace.

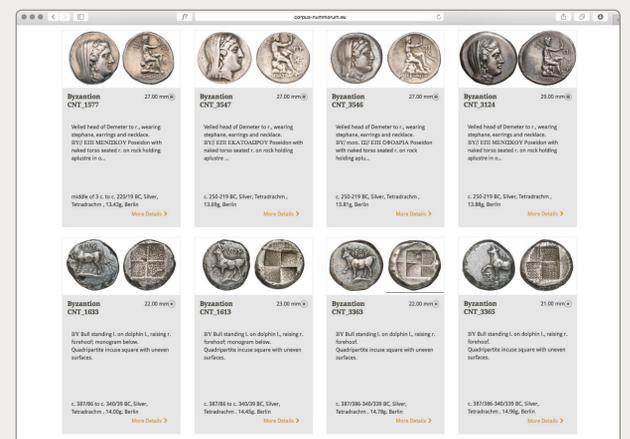

2 Ancient Thrace

The territory of Ancient Thrace comprises parts of the modern states of Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey. Our map gives you a brief overview of the Thracian cities where coins were minted in antiquity from the beginning of coinage to late Roman times. These coins are authorised by Greek colonies in the territory of Thrace, Thracian rulers and tribes as well as by cities minting during the Roman Imperial period.

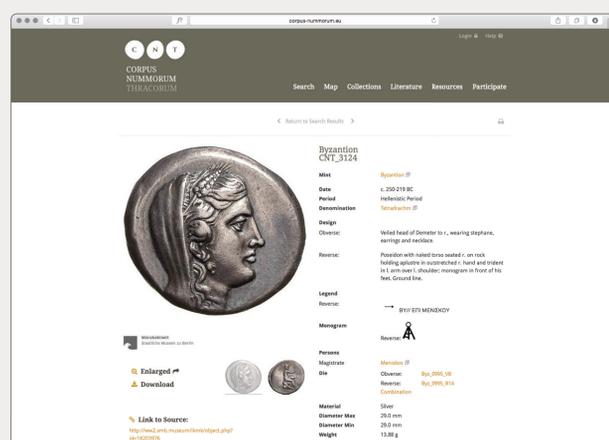

3 Research tool

Find and compare Thracian coins from collections around the world. The coins are virtually collected in the online database. The portal initially began with a collection of plaster casts from the research project for Greek coins (Griechisches Münzwerk) at the Berlin-Brandenburg Academy of Sciences and Humanities together with the coin collection from the Berlin Münzkabinet. Today, however, the stock of coins continues to grow on a regular basis through coins from other collections.

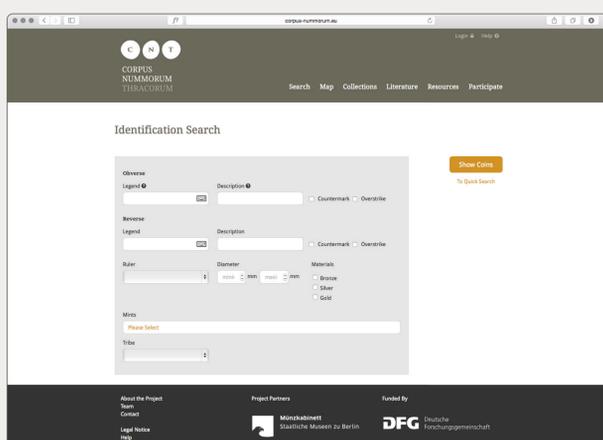

4 Illustrative entry

In the detail view for each coin, you will find all standard information such as weight, diameter, date, denomination, literature etc. Performing one click will also redirect to all coins of this denomination or mint or most useful to all coins with the same die combination or the same obverse or reverse. You can also enlarge and download the photo, and find a link to its source as well as to the stable unique identifiers (IDs in form of URIs) provided by nomisma.org.

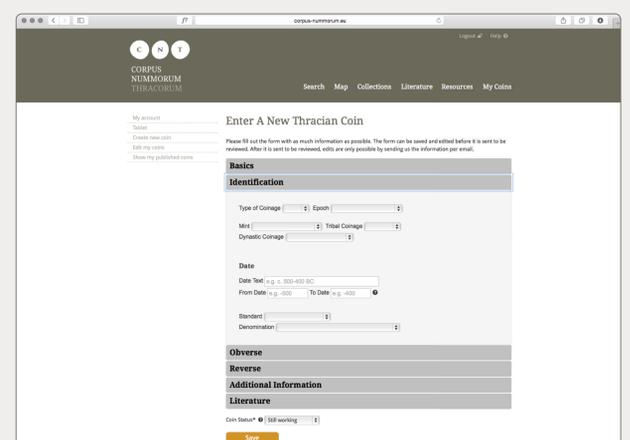

5 Search options

CNT offers a wide range of search options! In addition to conducting searches using free search terms or the advanced or identification search, you also have access to all the mints by consulting our map of Thrace. What's more, you can also see all the Thracian coins held in a specific museum or private collections. Clicking the "Literature" button will display all the coins included in one of the publications listed.

6 Join us!

It is very easy to join and become part of our community! You can create your own user account on the website to enjoy access to extra functions. You can enter new Thracian coins into the database yourself, for example. It is very easy to do so and there are very easy-to-understand step-by-step instructions. We offer additional import options for museums and institutions with a large collection of Thracian coins or their own database. Just contact us via email: peter@bbaw.de
